

Dorothy L. Smith (1930-2013)

From Miller's grave, turn away from the road and walk down nine rows toward the rear of the cemetery. Turn right and walk almost all the way to the fence, where you will find the headstones for Dorothy Smith and her son, Andrew Phillip Smith.

Andrew Thomas Smith (1930-1993)

Walk back towards the road for two rows and turn to your right until you see Andrew Thomas Smith's grave.

Joe Pelman (1890-1976)

Now head back toward the center section of the cemetery and cross the driveway. Walk down four rows toward the rear of the cemetery until you see the first row of graves parallel to a small tree. Turn left at Emma West's headstone and stop at Joe Pelman's headstone.

The Locust Grove Cemetery Audio Tour

Welcome!

Locust Grove Cemetery is an African-American cemetery located on state highway 169 in Nicholasville, KY. Download or stream the audio tour from our website at jesspublib.org/locust-grove. Begin the tour at the top of the driveway with the entrance sign.

1. Andrew McAfee (1862-1927)

From the entrance driveway, Andrew McAfee's headstone is the first one on the left as you face the cemetery.

2. George Combs (1881-1923)

Walk to the third row down and slightly to the left from McAfee's headstone until you see George Combs's large headstone.

3. Anna Bell Holloway Jackmon (1912-1985)

Cross the driveway and walk down a couple of rows toward the rear of the cemetery until you see a rounded headstone standing by itself. Head to your right and stop when you see Ora Belle and Frank R. Cannon, Sr.'s headstone. Anna Bell Jackmon is buried in an unmarked grave between the Cannons and Nellie Claybourne.

4. Frank Cannon, Sr. (1913-1988) and 5. Ora Belle Hamilton Cannon (1911-1998)

Now turn to Frank Cannon, Sr. and Ora Belle Hamilton Cannon's graves.

6. Lizzie Cannon (1870-1965)

Walk back up toward the road six rows and head toward the exit driveway on your left. Her headstone faces the road.

7. Emma Jean Guyn Miller (1901-2009)

Now cross the exit driveway, which is to your right as you face the cemetery. Walk down four rows toward the rear of the cemetery. Turn right and stop when you see the large, rose-colored stone with Miller engraved on the side facing the road.
